RUSSIANS CALL REPARATIONS TREATY 'MUST'

Won't Accept Any Settlement Not Involving Levy on Germany.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, April 12 — A. Y. [illegible] Soviet deputy foreign [illegible] made it clear today that [illegible] nion Russia never would [illegible] German settlement without [illegible] rations payments to the [illegible] on from current pro[illegible] on a large scale.

[illegible]nsky, right hand man of [illegible] Foreign Minister V. M. [illegible] said acceptance by the United States of the principle of [illegible] reparations was the thing [illegible] been fighting for" in [illegible] of foreign ministers [illegible]nsky told a news conference [illegible] first held by a Soviet [illegible] since the foreign ministers [illegible]—that this lack of agreement in the approach to reparations was the foremost difficulty [illegible] the western powers and the Soviet Union.

The Soviet deputy made this statement as the four-power council resumed its discussion of current political problems and procedures for writing the German treaty, after deadlocking last night on the question of Germany's western frontier with France.

A treaty without reparations," Vishinsky said, "is the same thing as a man without a heart."

He said he welcomed Secretary of State Marshall's recent suggestion that if capital plants earmarked for capital reparations were left in Germany, some current reparations might be agreed to. He added, however, that he could not state what Marshall actually had in mind. Here Vishinsky evidently was referring to the amount of such reparations.

Draws Large Crowd

Vishinsky's news conference drew many British, American, French and Russian correspondents and produced one sharp exchange between Vishinsky and a British reporter.

W. N. Ewer, of the London Daily Herald, objected to Vishinsky's statement that Britain and the United States were taking current reparations from their occupation zones in the form of coal and other resources. Ewer said Britain had received no coal and that coal sold from the British zone had been used to pay for imports into Germany.

If Mr. Vishinsky is aware of these two rudimentary facts, what is his motive in making these charges against us, his allies?" Ewer asked.

If it is said," Vishinsky replied, "that Great Britain has received coal—"

Great Britain has received no coal," Ewer interrupted.

Vishinsky continued that the

23,000 Idle In Ohio Walkouts

Total May Swell if Strike by Akron City Workers Develops.

By The Associated Press

Ohio today could count 23,000 workers idle because of labor disputes.

There were immediate prospects that the total would soar Monday if a threatened strike of Akron's city service workers, affiliated with the CIO United Public Workers union, rejected Mayor Charles E. Slusser's appeal for a two-week's delay. They are demanding a 20-cent increase in pay.

Approximately 15,000 of the state's striking workers were participants in the nationwide telephone strike.

Meetings tonight and tomorrow were to determine whether workers at one of two struck Barberton plants would return and whether the Akron city employes would heed the mayor's appeal.

Hope For Settlement

Union officials at the Sun Rubber Co., who termed a walkout of 1,400 at Barberton over suspension of an employe for smoking in a restricted area, a "wildcat" strike, said they hoped to effect a settlement tomorrow and have the "entire plant back in operation by Monday morning."

Another 2,000 Barberton workers were out at the Seiberling Rubber Co., after employes and management failed to agree on a new contract calling for additional concessions beyond the 11½-cents-an-hour pay increase accepted by the United Rubber Workers in the "Big Four" factories.

Demands for a 12-cent hourly pay boost, plus any amount over that granted to the CIO United Steel Workers, were the basic reasons 2,700 AFL United Brick and Clay Workers struck yesterday at Uhrichsville and several other cities where pottery plants are located.

Salary Demands Met

The demands—at least on salary issues—were said to have been met by the Robinson Clay Products Co., of Akron, late yester-

PHONE GROUPS LOOK TO U.S.

Breakdown of Negotiations Leaves Next Move Up to Government.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 12—Collapse of negotiations to end the important long lines portion of the cross-country telephone tieup left both sides looking to the government for the next move today.

"We're settling down for a long strike," said President Joseph A. Beirne of the National Federation of Telephone Workers.

Both Beirne and officials of the mammoth Bell telephone system left the door open for continued government efforts to end the dispute over wages and other contract demands.

Administration officials—talked privately of possible seizure of the industry by President Truman under provisions of the federal communications act, but they showed little enthusiasm for this solution.

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach weighed his reply to a proposal by the NFTW's policy committee that the government sponsor a face-to-face meeting between union leaders and top officials of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, with press and radio reporters invited.

So far there has been no meeting between Beirne and C. F. Craig, A. T. and T. vice president who helped bring off a settlement of last year's threatened telephone walkout 25 minutes before it was scheduled to begin. Craig has conferred several times privately with labor department officials.

Meantime in upstate New York a strike of maintenance and plant employes against the New York Telephone Company was settled with an agreement to arbitrate a demand for a $12 weekly wage hike.

Company spokesmen hailed the development as the "first break" in the nationwide strike. The settlements affects only plant and

APPROVE NEW PAY CONTRACT

Cooler Union Votes To Okay Agreement Covering Wages and Other Benefits.

At a meeting in The Star auditorium late yesterday Local No. 750, UAW-CIO employes of Universal Cooler division of International Detroit Corp. approved a new contract providing a general 11½ cent hourly wage increase retroactive to Feb. 1, 1947, and other benefits.

The new pact, formulated by the union's negotiating committee and the company management in a 20-hour continuous bargaining session that ended early yesterday, provides back pay of about $50,000, and a boost of more than $240,000 in the Universal Cooler $2,000,000 annual payroll in Marion, company officials estimated. There are more than 1,000 employes at the plant.

Negotiate Many Weeks

Negotiations toward the new contract had been under way over many weeks, with the terms of the old agreement meanwhile automatically continuing since it expired on Oct. 8, 1946. The union recently took a formal vote authorizing a strike at the end of April if agreement was not reached by that date.

Major points of the new contract, besides the hourly wage increase, include:

Establishment of the union shop.

Six paid holidays per year, with provision for double pay if called to work on those days. Previously had no paid holidays.

An additional hourly rate increase of five cents for women, effective May 1, over the 11½ cent general boost.

Improved vacation allowance and overtime provisions.

A setting of a 7½ cent hourly wage differential for second shift.

Only the customary review of the proposed contract by international union officials now remains before formal signatures are affixed.

Company and union officials alike praised the new contract as expressing a high degree of cooperation in assuring that the production of Universal Cooler, which builds refrigerating and cooling units for many of the largest and best known national manufacturers of refrigerating, cooling and air conditioning equipment, will be uninterrupted.

Union Statement

Edward Duck, International UAW-CIO representative, who personally took part in the negotiations alongside the local committee, said:

"We are much pleased with the company management's attitude in granting improved conditions of work in many respects. I feel sure that the shop committee and members of the union are to be congratulated on what has been achieved, and that the company will find that the concessions it has made will be reflected in even greater efforts on the part of our members to produce the quantity and quality that are desired."

McNeal's Statement

F. S. McNeal, Detrola vice president and general manager of Universal Cooler, said, "We are continuing in this new contract a company policy of extending to our employes every wage and other benefit that we can establish in the light of our competitive position in the industry and other major cost considerations, without placing at a disadvantage the very enterprise on whose success the future of both the employes and the management depends."

NEWSPAPERS CALLED BULWARK OF NATION

Governor of Pennsylvania Praises Record at Anniversary Dinner.

By The Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 12—Gov. James H. Duff said today newspapers stand "as one of the great bulwarks of the nation" and "everywhere have a splendid record of public service."

Pennsylvania's executive made the statement in connection with the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin by Alexander Cummings in 1847.

"When the Bulletin was founded," Duff said, "a newspaper was a novelty; today it is a necessary part of everyday living.

"The newspapers of America have been among the great inspirational powers that have made possible this unparalleled century of progress. They have inspired men to amazing accomplishments. They have contributed enormously to the measure of making America what it has become in these one hundred years."

Hitler Had Terrible Fear Of U. S. B-29's, Record Reveals

By The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, GERMANY, April 12—Adolf Hitler had a terrible fear of the American B-29 Superfortress bomber in the last months of the war and an amazing lack of faith in his own V-weapons, charred records of his secret staff conferences showed today.

The partly burned stenographic transcripts of his wartime conferences, captured by the U. S. army and released here, disclosed Hitler told Hermann Goering and members of the army general staff Jan. 10, 1945:

"Things are such that the American B-29 now is in action. The Japanese see them already. I feel a great danger, and one cannot weigh this danger too lightly. The B-29 bomber can be Germany's destruction. These deadly machines will make their appearance here."

The B-29 never appeared in Europe during the war, but Hitler's repeated references to them showed he feared them perhaps even more than the approaching armies of the Allies.

"Even now," he told Luftwaffe Chief Goering, blasting the fat field marshal for fiddling around with the construction of out-of-date fighter planes," the enemy planes come like a parade, and when the big ones come, German planes will literally enter a hailstorm of fire."

He said German planes would be mowed down ruthlessly. Hitler felt America could win the world war with the B-29, saying:

"The Americans can produce B-29's in great masses. What else does he need, the American? He can crush everything with them. Nobody can come and tell me they won't attack us. Now they are attacking Japan with 70 to 100 planes. But these will soon increase to 200, then 500, then 1,000 and then 2,000."

As for the V-1 and V-2 weapons, which Dr. Joseph Goebbels promised the German people would turn the tide of the war for them, Hitler had different ideas when he spoke secretly to his generals.

"Can't Decide War"

On the same day he was so worried about the appearance of the B-29, he said:

"I am sorry to say that the V-weapons cannot decide the war."

The same month, January, 1945, when the Allies were in Antwerp, an extract from a burned situation report quoted Hitler as saying:

"Yesterday I gave out orders that 50 Messerschmitt 262's should be refitted to carry 500-kilogram bombs. I simply must be able to drop them on Antwerp. We cannot rely on V-1 or V-2 shelling."

The fuehrer was incredulous when Gen. Alfred Jodl told him a V-2 missile had hit the Rex movie house in Antwerp Dec. 17, 1944, killing 1,100 persons. His comment was:

"That must have been the first successful hit with a V-2. It is so miraculous, I am skeptical and cannot believe it."

WALLACE HITS IMPERIALISM

Tells British America Started on Program of World Domination.

By The Associated Press

MANCHESTER, ENG., April 12—Henry A. Wallace charged today that the U. S. had embarked on a program of "ruthless imperialism" and declared that the program must fail because "Americans will never pay the cost and they cannot pay the cost."

In an attack on President Truman's proposals for aid to Turkey and Greece, delivered at a public meeting in this Midlands industrial center, Wallace said America's present program "if unchecked" would stretch the "American empire" from China to the Near East and from pole to pole.

"This position of ruthless imperialism is the position which all groups blinded by hatred of Russia must ultimately defend," the former vice-president and cabinet member declared, adding, "it may cost little to divide the world, but to keep the world divided is beyond the resources of any nation."

On Speaking Tour

Here on the first leg of a speaking tour that will take him to Stoke-on-Trent tonight and to Liverpool tomorrow, Wallace said the U. S. was controlled "by men who believe that in a world in which capitalism and communism live side by side there is little hope for peace."

"They believe," he said, "that the United Nations is doomed to insignificance. They believe that Communism threatens the world and must be stopped by American material and arms."

But, Wallace said, "We cannot buy off world Communism any more than we can suppress the idea of Communism by force of

Wallace Talks "Shocking Thing," Says Vandenberg

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 12—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) today termed Henry Wallace's appeals in England "a shocking thing."

The Republican chairman of the senate foreign relations committee offered this comment to reporters on speeches by the former Democratic vice president against President Truman's Greek-Turkish aid program:

"I think it is a shocking thing when an American citizen goes abroad to organize the world against his own government. I suggest that the important question is not what Mr. Wallace will do in 1948 but what he is doing in 1947."

(In a speech at Manchester today Wallace declared the United States had embarked on a program of "ruthless imperialism." He described proposed loans to Greece and Turkey as "the first down payments in a plan without shape or end.")

Wallace's speeches during his present tour abroad also drew sharp criticism from Senator Robertson (R-Wyo) who told reporters:

"I don't think that the British people are going to be foolish enough to be influenced by what he says."

Marital Pressure Builds on Bachelor Set To Wed at 103

By The Associated Press

SOUTHBEND, Ind., April 12—The marital pressure is on Uncle Dan Young, but nary a one of some 40 would-be brides meets his rigid first requirement—that she be 103 years old.

The hard-to-please bachelor celebrated his own 103rd birthday anniversary two weeks ago. It was an occasion for talking with news reporters, he discussed matrimony, among other things. He remarked casually that he would consider marriage if a woman his own age came along.

The statement was published. Uncle Dan had forgotten about it when letters started pouring in from would-be brides ranging in age from 42 to 100.

The varied responses listed qualifications and, sometimes, conditions for acceptance.

A Manhattan, Kans., woman wrote: "I am 99 and earned my own living doing art work."

From a Boston woman: "I am just 100 and as spry as a spring chicken. Please send me a pig from your farm, or bring one if you visit here."

A 68-year-old Springfield, O., widow, said, "will consider a man of your age if he's a good man. If you saw me, you wouldn't want a lady of 85 or 95."

A spinster in Bethlehem, Pa., also 68, said, "Widowers I could have plenty, but I want a bachelor."

A letter from Flint, Mich., included the warning, "Life is short at the best, so don't delay."

FULL CHAMBER DEBATE SET FOR TUESDAY

Measure Bans Closed Shop; Puts Limit on Bargaining Scope.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 12—The house labor committee formally approved today, 18 to 4, a bill to clamp sharp restrictions on strikes and labor unions.

It took the committee only eight minutes for the final vote. It had approved the measure informally in all details yesterday.

Chairman Hartley (R-NJ) told reporters there will be no "substantial changes" on the house floor when the bill comes up for debate next Tuesday.

CIO Ready for Fight

The action came as CIO leaders arrived in the capital to organize for a fight against legislation shaping up in congress to impose a long list of curbs on labor unions.

Both house and senate committees have included a flat ban on the "closed shop in their proposed labor legislation. The senate bill has not yet been completed.

Hartley said the house measure is so worded as to forbid any industry-wide strike against employers who compete with one another. This means, he explained, that if John L. Lewis, for example, decides his United Mine Workers have no contract next July 1, there can be no strike without running the risk of penalties.

Would Be Collusive Strike

For Lewis to enforce his traditional policy of "no contract, no work," Hartley said, would be a collusive strike.

In case of such a strike, Hartley said, a union might suffer a year's suspension of its bargaining rights and under the anti-trust laws damage suits could be brought against the union.

All 15 committee Republicans and three southern Democrats were recorded as voting for the new bill. Four Democrats were against and three Democrats did not ballot.

Republicans for the bill were: Hartley, Landis of Indiana, Hoffman of Michigan, McCowen of Ohio, Max Schwabe of Missouri, McConnell of Pennsylvania, Ralph Gwinn of New York, Buck of New York, Brehm of Ohio, Smith of Kansas, Kersten of Wisconsin, MacKinnon of Minnesota, Owens of Illinois, Keating of Pennsylvania, and Nixon of California.

Democrats for Barden of North Carolina, Fisher of Texas, and Wood of Georgia.

Democrats against: Lesinski of Michigan, Kelley of Pennsylvania, Madden of Indiana, and Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Senate Works on Version

The senate labor committee, headed by Senator Taft (R-Ohio), went through about half of another huge bill yesterday, toning down many provisions over Taft's opposition. The committee, sharply divided on the issues, hopes to complete its work Monday.

Meanwhile, the CIO, dead set against both bills, organized its opposition.

The CIO-political action committee was called into session this morning and CIO's nine vice-presidents scheduled a conference afterward to discuss the legislation. CIO President Philip Murray arranged to attend both meetings.

A mass gathering was called tomorrow for 250 delegates from all over the country, representing CIO's 40 national unions and state and city councils.

Although the labor committees agreed that they are against the closed shop, both are in favor of permitting the union shop under certain conditions.

Condition of Stabbing Victim Is Improving

The condition of Donald Vance, former Marion man who was stabbed in Berea Wednesday night, is "good," attendants at Berea Community hospital said today. Mr. Vance "spent a good night" and is considered out of danger, they said.

He was stabbed on the street while walking with his wife and two sons by a man who accused him of jostling on a bus on which they had been riding. He was wounded in the neck and back and his jugular vein cut. Berea police filed charges of stabbing with intent to kill against William Farris, 25, Negro, also of Berea, yesterday. Farris is said to have admitted the stabbing.

Maple Festival Guests Likely To Swamp Tiny Geauga Village

By The Associated Press

CHARDON, O., April 12—Guests were expected in carload lots in this tiny village today on the second day of the Geauga county maple festival, and the place was decked out in its holiday best.

For this is the first year since 1941 that the festival has been held, and Wayne Johnson, secretary of the affair, estimated some 140,000 of the curious would overrun Chardon by the time the show ends tomorrow night.

Though maple sirup, Chardon's most famous commodity, had the center ring—about 100 gallons at $6 per were sold in the first hour yesterday—there were a large number of side shows in competition.

Emmet Kail of Port Washington, O., and Barnard Logsdon of Killbuck, O., sawed pieces of eight-by-eight-inch timber at a clip of four seconds per log. In another area, Boy Scouts held a water boiling contest, and country lads sheared sheep for the benefit of the city folk.

Herbert To Participate

Symbolizing the spirit of the affair, Gov. Thomas J. Herbert expected to plant a hard maple tree today in the village park, the festival's arena, and present awards including a silver trophy to the maker of the best can of maple sirup.

As thousands streamed down the flag-rimmed main street they could see antique displays in house windows. At the high school, girls modeled clothes last night in a style show that covered the 1900 to 1947 period.

Even the U. S. army showed up with an exhibit. A German V-2 buzz bomb and a 30,000-watt landing searchlight, among other items.

Maple Sirup Main Attraction

Despite all the extra-curricular activities, maple sirup and its various uses provided the main attraction for the out-of-towners. A song on maple sirup was written, a play "The Sugar Tree Family" was enacted last night, and former Ohio State Grange Master Paul McNish supervised an exhibit showing how sirup is made.

High spot yesterday on the opening program was the presentation of prizes to couples married 50 years or more. These persons won:

Couple married the longest—Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Lodrich, Parma, O. (married Sept. 12, 1881); Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tommer, Chardon road, Cleveland (married Jan. 30, 1882).

Youngest couple married 50 years—Mr. and Mrs. Ona Hopkins, Middlefield, O. (he is 68, she is 65).

Couple who have lived in the same house all 50 years of married life—Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Bush, Williamsfield, O.

Oldest woman present—Mrs. W. W. Hall, Chardon (86).

Fighting days over, the light cruisers Trenton, left, and Detroit, right, stand in the Schuylkill at Philadelphia ready to be scrapped along with the Richmond, Concord and Memphis. The five sea veterans were sold for $336,140.

The 22-year-old Detroit epitomizes the fighting record of the quintet. Survivor of Pearl Harbor, it was flagship for Rear Adm. D. B. The Concord climaxed its 23 years by firing the last shot in the war on Aug. 12, 1945. The gun that fired it will be saved from scrap and mounted as a memorial. Cambridge People Learn Of Role Played in D-Day Plans

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, April 12—The [illegible] folks of Cambridge, O., had a [illegible] unheralded role in the [illegible] at Normandy.

They "teamed up" in the spring of 1944, Col. Robert G. West, assistant Ohio river division engineer, disclosed for the first time last night, in the processing of thousands of army camouflage nets which helped cover the American forces' assault on Fortress Europe.

Speaking on an Army week program over WLW, Colonel West narrated "one of the great now-it-can-be-told stories of the war."

"We had plenty of so-called 'desert-type' camouflage nets stored in the engineers' sub-depot at Cambridge but precious few of a gray-green color suitable for use against the springtime colors of Normandy.

"The desert-type nets, left over from our planning of the campaign in Africa, were gray—much like sheets—with narrow stripes of brown burlap woven throughout.

"Orders came through from Washington that the desert-type nets be 'de-garnished',—stripped of their brown color—and processed for shipment to Europe within 30 days.

Col. Dean Thompson, then commanding officer of the Cambridge sub-depot "had the answer in a hurry."

Thompson, a member of the Cambridge First Methodist church, approached Walter Springer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce there, and Rev. W. D. Heaston, who, as pastor of Thompson's church also was president of the Cambridge Ministerial association.

The next day, announcements from pulpits urged parishioners to "meet again at the church tomorrow to give your time to an important undertaking on behalf of your government."

Pay of 40 cents each for net 12x12 feet and $1.20 each for the large 30x30 nets was promised and 11 Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, war mothers' organizations, the Salvation Army, ladies' aid groups and others responded.

"Men would work in their offices and shops by day and join their wives at the churches at night. And it was such filthy-dirty work that in some cases it wasn't possible to serve food because the church rooms were filled with dust."

Army records show that first shipments of the nets went forward "well within the 30-day period.

"The invasion went off as it was supposed to."

Nazi Membership Shrivels Intellect, Examination Shows

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 12—Examinations of Nazis and similar "anti" groups have revealed that hate shrinks the intellect, feelings and imagination of individuals, says Dr. David M. Levy, nationally known New York psychologist.

Speaking on "The Psychology of Hostility," the official of the National Advisory Mental Health council last night told a Western Reserve university forum that hate exacts great costs in physical and mental illnesses.

Tests of personality patterns of Nazi prisoners and Americans who have climbed on the bandwagon of "anti" movements have disclosed an actual shrinkage of thought, emotion and creative ability, said Dr. Levy.

"The hater tries to channel every experience into the track of hatred," he asserted. "He interprets his enemy's every move into new causes for hostility. His attacks on the enemy and his exaggerations and distortions of the enemy's powers to retaliate cause defensiveness, hostility and new hatred.

"This warps other qualities. His ideas tend to become stereotyped. He labors under his expressions of hostility. He becomes paranoid, or even an outright paranoiac."

MAN BOUND OVER FOR TRUCK THEFT

Resident of Upper Sandusky Pleads Guilty Here.

Oscar M. Messenger, 22, of Upper Sandusky, formerly of Marion, was bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bond today in municipal court when he pleaded guilty to a charge of auto theft.

He was arrested Friday afternoon at Forest Glen just north of Marion by Sheriff Stansberry of Wyandot county, where he had allegedly taken a Millard Hunt dump truck stolen the night before.

Marion police said the truck was reported missing from the company's property on North Prospect street Friday morning. The Wyandot county sheriff was informed of the theft in a general radio alarm put out by Marion authorities.

A 1946 passenger car belonging to the Ohio Public Service Co. was reported stolen Thursday night from in front of the home of Leo Rizor of 662 Cherry street. Mr. Rizor is an employe of the company.

TO START REVIEW OF COUNTY AAA PLANS

Township Committeemen Called for Conference.

The Marion county AAA committee will begin Monday calling in community committeeman from the county's 15 townships to review the 1,683 farm plans submitted by Marion county farmers and to determine the amount they will receive this year for compliance with AAA soil conservation practices.

Frank G. Montgomery, county AAA chairman, said three township committees would be called in each day next week to set up payments for farmers in their respective townships. The amount of the county's AAA allocation this year is $89,116, which will be prorated among farmers participating in the program, since the amount sought by farmers exceeded the allocation by $70,487.

If all the soil conservation practices asked for by farmers were approved, the county AAA office reported the amount would be $159,603.

Woman Gives Birth To Premature Twin Daughters Unaided

By The Associated Press

LIBERTY, Mo., April 12—Her physician ordered her to bed for what he termed a "well-earned rest" today but petite Mrs. Theda Pearson fretted to "be about my housework" after the unattended birth of premature twin daughters.

The 24-year-old, 100-pound wife of a north Kansas City laborer, Walter Pearson, 40, delivered herself of the infants in the living room of their farm home near here late Thursday afternoon.

When the husband returned from work he found his wife sitting on a daybed in the living room peeling potatoes for supper, the twins, Carolyn Sue, 5 pounds, and Marilyn Lou, 3½ pounds, wrapped in blankets beside her. They had been born two hours previously.

Pearson was met by his two sons, who told him as he approached the house, "We got a lot of little sisters."

The father called Dr. C. M. Smith of Liberty, who examined the mother and twins. "You did a good job," he said.

Said she:

"That second baby sure was a surprise."

The twins were given a good chance of survival.

DISDAIN FOR PUBLIC SERVANTS DEPLORED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 12—Ohio's governor, Thomas J. Herbert, in a speech last night urged state educators against permitting their college graduates to leave school with a "disdain" for public servants.

The governor addressed the annual banquet of the 76th annual convention of the Ohio College association, which concludes today, declaring:

"If you x x x can help achieve as much progress in the field of social and political science as has been accomplished in the professional, industrial, agricultural and business fields, you will deserve and win the undying gratitude of our people and have perpetuated for future generations the blessings of our form of government."

Colleges, the governor explained, should not take sides in controversial issues but likewise never were "justified" in causing their students to feel that they must "refrain from personal decisions on public issues."

Dr. William E. Wickenden, president of Case Tech, predicting a "great expansion" in future education, declared that any such increase would arise from "technological education." He said:

"I can not believe that American culture will be endangered in any such process x x x if we take the patterns for our expanding education from its technological arm. No one questions that we need an elite of scholarship, morals and culture which our liberal colleges ought to supply as much as religion needs a professional ministry."

Panel discussions and a general meeting were set for this afternoon and evening.

Fine Arts Day Reports To Be Heard by Board

PROGRESS of plans for the annual community fine arts day on Tuesday, May 6, will be heard at the monthly meeting of the executive board of the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs Tuesday at the Federation Home. The meeting will get under way at 12 o'clock with Mrs. T. H. Sutherland, president, presiding.

Mrs. James Ralston, chairman for the fine arts day observance and her committee, have spent hours on end planning the day's program, which promises to be one of the most colorful and entertaining of federation events. The afternoon and evening program, together with the banquet, will be at the First Evangelical and Reformed church.

In keeping with the theme, "International Relations," the setting will be an avenue of all the flags of the more than 50 countries of the United Nations. The Boy Scouts have been given the honor of depicting the central theme, the United States. Girl Scouts will assist in the day's events by providing the place favors for the banquet.

The idea of each club selecting a country or countries for an exhibit has met with enthusiastic favor and already many clubs have reported to the committee their plans for the day. GI brides in the community have been invited to attend and also to have an exhibit in recognition of their homeland. Each club is to provide its own screen or background, table and equipment for the exhibit. Exhibits will be judged on artistic arrangement, extent of exhibit, creative theme and originality. Clubs are asked to contact Mrs. A. W. Kette concerning the exhibits.

The recreation room of the church will be open on Monday before the fine arts day when clubs are to arrange their exhibits. It is the plan of the committee to do the judging at 11 a. m. Tuesday and the program will get under way at 2 o'clock. Providing a musical background for the afternoon will be a string ensemble and selection will be patriotic in theme.

The banquet will be at 6 o'clock. Table decorations are to be in charge of the House and Garden club. The evening program is scheduled for 8 o'clock. The talks will be given in the church auditorium.

Tale of the Man Who Got What He Wanted

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, April 12—I want to tell you the story of a man who got what he wanted.

It illustrates how everything comes to him who waits.

It's an O. Henry type story with a real life twist, too true to make good fiction.

Enough preamble. Here's the story.

I have a friend I have known for many years. He's a big bluff man, hearty, friendly, well-educated.

Hal Boyle

We roomed together when we first came to New York more than ten years ago. It was a wonderful life for a time. A thin pocketbook didn't make so much difference then to two young men new to Manhattan. We had more fun just being here than the old men did who owned the place.

Friend Meets Girl

But my friend met a girl who convinced him there were things more romantic than breakfasting on peanuts and drugstore coffee.

They married. After a while when I visited them, I had to learn how to keep the kids from falling into my highball.

My friend was nixed by the draft board during the war because of a heart that sometimes went "phoosh phoosh" instead of "thump thump." It made him restless to know many pals were overseas while he was still working at the same old desk. But he had plenty to do. The family was growing and the prices were rising.

Sometime ago he changed jobs. It didn't turn out well. Every day was a torture. He was depressed and blue. He couldn't seem to shake his unhappiness off. His wife wanted him to quit, but he didn't want to take a chance on being unemployed.

Two Jobs Open

A few weeks ago he got tips that two jobs of a kind he liked were open. He applied with both concerns and was interviewed by them.

Early this week, while awaiting the outcome, he came to my home. He was distraught with worry but still hopeful of his chances. We talked for a long time of the old days, when we had sat up half the night drinking beer and reading Mencken and Keats and Shakespeare—all good beer companions.

"Those were the happiest days I ever knew," he said. He felt better when he left.

Three days later I went with his wife to keep an oppointment with my friend.

"I have wonderful news for him," she said and waved two letters. The room was crowded when we arrived.

"Oh, I have such good news for you," his wife said, running up and showing him the letters. "They came today. You can have either job. One is offering $8,000 and the other $10,000."

She was crying a little now.

"Read me the letters," he said. At last he had what he had wanted and worried himself sick to get.

The reason she had to read him the letters was that we were in the psychiatric ward of a hospital and my friend was sitting on a bed with both arms in a strait jacket. A nurse standing by held a cigaret to his lips.

Down the corridor of the kind of room my friend will have to stay in for many many weeks ran a pajama-clad little gray-haired man with a gray stubble beard crying:

"Hey, boy, I've just saved the world. Now everybody be happy."

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M.D.

Skin Trouble

PEOPLE who suffer with inflammation of the skin about the toes and, particularly, between the toes, are likely to jump to the conclusion that the trouble is due to ringworm or fungus infection. According to Drs. Fred D. Weidman and Frederic A. Glass of Philadelphia, however, fungus infection probably accounts for no more than one out of three such cases. Infection with germs, continued rubbings and sweating may all produce the same symptoms as ringworm infection.

Since this is the case, there has been great difficulty not only in finding the cause of the disorder, but in treatment, as no single drug or ointment will serve to get rid of all such conditions.

Drs. Weidman and Glass made a study of 117 men whose feet were affected in these ways with the aim of finding some form of treatment which might be used in all cases, regardless of the cause of the disorder, at least to relieve symptoms and to prevent recurrence.

Of the six preparations tried one known as metacresylacetate seemed to be the most valuable. Boric acid in talc was also quite useful. These preparations apparently cured the condition in about one out of six instances and brought improvement in three out of four. Benzoic acid and salicylic acid also brought improvement in three out of four cases but cured only one out of 20. It can be seen that none of these preparations was ideal.

Certain other facts were brought out by the study made by Drs. Weidman and Glass. They found that the frequency of infection was not affected by wooden, cement or stone floors. The symptoms were about the same no matter what type of ringworm was producing the condition. And there was no difference in the effect of the preparations tried on the various kinds of ringworm. There appeared to be a great decrease in the number of infections in persons over 50 years of age. The type of ringworm producing the difficulty was different in the white patients and the negro ones.

It would appear that there is need for much further study to find some more satisfactory method of treating inflammation of the skin between the toes. Of course, when this condition occurs, a careful study is made by the physician to determine the cause of the difficulty. The treatment will vary to some extent with the source of the condition and its extent. Highly irritating preparations should be avoided since they will only tend to make the condition worse.

JUST look at yourself standing there, that come-to-Poppa gleam brightening in your eye with every passing second.

Look at you — taking in those long, sleek, all-the-way-through fender lines — and falling harder for them every minute.

Honestly now — aren't you just itching to get hands on that wheel and touch off the surging Fireball power packing that big bonnet?

Aren't you picturing yourself giving the scornful laugh to the cobbles and the bumps, the jars and the jolts, in this steady, road-wise, coil-spring-cushioned husky?

Affaire Lilienthal

THE SENATE'S 50 to 31 vote confirming David E. Lilienthal as chairman of the atomic energy commission cleared the air. A number of well-known Americans who didn't knew where they stood before know now.

Chairman Lilienthal knows that he is firmly established in his job by virtue of a thumping majority in his favor, considering what he had to go through to get voted on at all. That should help him, and it should help the other members of the commission. All of them also know that the senate and the American public will be watching them like hawks. That's a good thing to know, too.

Senate Republicans know they are split wide open between a Taft-Bricker and a Vandenberg faction, which should help them temper some of their future windiness to their shorn potentialities. Senator McKellar of Tennessee, the Democratic wheelhorse who was permitted to take up the cudgels against the appointee, also knows something he didn't know before: that his opposition is a credit to an appointee. It was a mistake to let McKellar martyrize Lilienthal, who still must prove that he is something more than one of the Harvard lawyers who came to Washington with the New Deal to make over the United States to suit the Harvard lawyers who sent for them.

Dead Center

THE PRESENT price situation might be compared to a locomotive on dead center. Everyone agrees it would be wonderful if the engine could be made to move. A few have even stood behind the iron monster and tried to budge it by putting their shoulders against it. But it will take a powerful shove, the cooperation of everybody, to get it rolling.

So the locomotive stands there, building up a head of steam which will take it on a breakneck, downhill trip when it finally does start rolling. There will be no slackening of speed on the curves and a lot of people may get hurt before it finally comes to a stop in the valley.

Pruning the Rhubarb

TO BASEBALL players, a rhubarb is an argument or fight. By suspending Manager Leo Durocher of Brooklyn for one year, Commissioner Chandler halts a large and unseemly rhubarb which wasn't doing baseball a bit of good.

The reason for Durocher's suspension is "the accumulated unpleasant incidents in which he has been involved." Among these was his vendetta with the New York Yankees in which he presented his case in signed newspaper articles. The accusations and counter-accusations began to assume the complexity of politics in a prewar Balkan kingdom. The commissioner's order halts all that with the admonition that "all parties to this controversy are silenced from the time this order is issued."

Baseball pays well for colorful and aggressive players and managers. But off the field those desirable characteristics can transform those same players and managers into pugnacious mountebanks. News of baseball and the men connected with it should be found on the sport pages, not in the gossip columns. For $70,000 a year, Durocher should have known better.

Bless 'em All

UNLIKE Franklin D. Roosevelt, who tried unsuccessfully to purge the Democratic party of elements which offended him, Harry Truman is first, last and always a party-line Democrat. He has gone a little out of his way to bless 'em all and make it plain he expects Henry Wallace, Claude Pepper and all the other dissident Democrats to be pulling together in 1948.

And don't bet that they won't be pulling together. The commonest mistake about party politics is to forget that the gravitational pull of party loyalty is stronger than the centrifugal force which threatens to tear parties asunder. Whether it's Democrats or Republicans, they may spend most of the time between elections fighting, but for the 12 hours or so that the polling places are open on election day they are lined up shoulder to shoulder with their own kind.

In other words, where else would Mr. Truman expect to find Wallace, Pepper et al in 1948? Certainly not with the Republicans, who don't want them.

Hard Times for A. & A.

THE ARCADE & ATTICA Railroad in New York state, which has been operating at a profit, reports its only diesel engine and two cars damaged in a washout at Johnsonburg.

The A. & A., a 28-mile line, is financed by farmer stockholders who keep it running as a matter of convenience. Instead of a cash dividend, stockholders take their annual yield in the form of dinner at the railroad's expense.

Like other railroads, A. & A. is tightening its belt for the long pull. As a result of the washout, it may be necessary to cut down on the roast beef and eliminate apple pie a la mode from the next dividend.

Our Impotent Allies

By RAYMOND MOLEY

British Government Weakness Again Shown.

NEITHER the President nor any other administration leader can say it, but the major difficulty in our foreign policy is the incapacity of our major western allies. Our partners are snarled by troubles at home. Small wonder that we seem to be going it alone!

The British Labor government is, to a large degree, a class government. Its major strength is in British labor movement. Hence, in every foreign crisis, Atlee and Bevin must reckon on the sympathy of British groups of workers for similarly employed workers abroad. When Russia demands reparations in German manpower, there is an outcry from British workers.

And now there has been a strike demonstration by German coal miners, and rumors are spreading that before long there will be a general strike in the whole British zone of Germany. British military cars were overturned in the road or thrown in the water. Forty thousand miners quit work.

Probable Reasons

There seem to have been two reasons for this unprecedented action against an occupying power. The miners, driven desperate by short food rations, have learned how important coal is to all western Europe. It is, as Hoover pointed out, the key to Europe's recovery. They probably know, also, that under the Labor government British miners are producing less and less. The British miners' work-week has recently been reduced from six days to five. This makes production from the Ruhr all the more important.

A second reason for the Ruhr revolt is the weakness of the British Labor government in dealing with any emergency—a fact which is also probably well known to the Germans. While the Labor government seems to act firmly against a small minority in Palestine it is weak in action and befuddled in defense against large and restless groups in the Empire. Whenever a crisis appears, there is loud talk by the left wing of the party and threats of work stoppage by some working groups.

Poor Government Showing

The administration of the Labor government is weak. Largely made up of theorists such as Strachey and Shinwell, untrained in public administrative responsibility, the government has been pathetically weak in home emergencies such as housing and food. If the British government had acted with energy and efficiency, it could have made use of vast surpluses of potatoes in this country which rotted in the fields. It is obvious that the first requirement in work organization is to see to it that those who work hardest should eat most. The British policy in the Ruhr has been too little and too late.

It is unnecessary to add that harsh measures could have only partially succeeded in getting Germans to work harder in the Ruhr. It is true that the same Germans who, as miners, quit work would and did, as soldiers, adopt ruthless measures toward any civilian population. In Poland, under German occupation, miners got only potatoes and not much of them, but they dared not resist.

Position of U. S.

And so the United States must come to the rescue, here as everywhere. The country which will ultimately bear the burden in the Ruhr is the United States. We shall have to provide food for Germany and loans to Britain to enable Britain to help the Ruhr. The entire situation points once more to the need for unified authority in Germany. If we must pay the bills, we must be able to supply the efficient management necessary to recovery.

A Sliding Scale For Double Chins?

Delegates to the International Beauty Show held in New York this week are petitioning congress to allow women to deduct from their income taxes for depreciation of their appearances.

A woman's face is her fortune, they contend, and it declines in value at the rate of 85 dollars a year.

That seems a reasonable estimate, since most all of them have been told, at one time or another, that they look like a million dollars.

Nor does the latter seem too high an evaluation to place on a glamour girl's beauty . . . not when you consider the return she gets on her investment.

This business of subsidizing wrinkles may be sound, but why the standard exemption? Is Hedy Lamarr entitled to no more deductible depreciation than Messy Bessie?

Moreover, how long will it be, if this goes through, before women will seek to list beauty parlor expenditure under "Maintenance and Upkeep?"

And, finally, why is it limited to face value . . . Many a woman has other assets which add up to a pretty figure.

U. S. Friendship for Brazil

By WALTER LIPPMANN

ABOUT two weeks ago an influential newspaper in Rio de Janeiro, the Correio da Manha, published an editorial which begins by saying that "in the United States today a marked indifference is noticeable regarding Brazil and her problems," and goes on to suggest that this country may be preparing, for "some mysterious reason which we ignore, to throw aside its traditional friendship towards Brazil," and to seek instead that of Argentina.

Though nothing whatever of the kind is in fact being prepared, or even entertained, in Washington it will come as an unpleasant shock to the people of this country that among our oldest and best friends in Latin America we could be suspected of intending anything so shabby and so stupid. It is a cardinal principle of the American system to oppose the formation within it or rival blocs, groups, and combinations. Whatever our faults or failings, we shall not willingly make of this hemisphere another Balkans.

But even if we stooped to the folly of dividing our neighbors, we could never choose Argentina in preference to Brazil. For while we have no exclusive alliance within the America, in relation to the rest of the world the connection between Brazil and the United States is peculiar and special.

We have been active allies in both world wars; the long unbroken friendship between the two countries rests on the solid foundation of strategic security, the complementary character of their economic interests, and of sentiment and tradition made strong by the fact that neither has failed the other in time of need.

Cause of Reaction

To suppose that we could forget all this, and could throw aside an old friend to cultivate a new and dubious one, is to suggest that we are not only without honor but without common sense.

It is, however, possible to understand how this suspicion arose. No doubt the immediate cause is the intrigue—I think that is the right word for it—in which some army officers, some politicians, some businessmen and certain diplomats have engaged in order to appease Peron. This intrigue would never have gotten as far as it has but for the fact that the State Department has been for so long a time without firm control at the top. It is one of the unhappy results of the secretary of state's acting as his own negotiator in Europe and of failing, therefore to run the Department of State.

But there is also a general cause—which it is not easy to remedy quickly—for the feeling of being neglected, which the Correio da Manha expresses. The burden of world responsibility upon the United States is enormous. It is almost unbearably complicated. Even if we had and could make available all the material resources which the breakdown of Europe and Asia calls for, we are desperately short of statesmen to make all the decisions wisely and effectively that have to be made in Washington.

The days are not long enough, no man's strength is great enough, to consider thoroughly all the issues, problems, emergencies, and far-reaching matters that compete for the attention of men like Mr. Marshall and Mr. Acheson. Many things that ought to be dealt with are in consequence neglected, and among them, no doubt, has been a continual consultation with our American neighbors on the problems not only of the Americas but of the world.

Thus, for example, we have been launched without sufficient consideration and preparation upon the vast indeterminate responsibilities of the so-called Truman doctrine. The commitment, having been made, will not also have to be studded with a view to finding out how in fact it is to be supported.

For the Greek and Turkish subsidies are only a first installment on a policy which has been proclaimed but has not been defined, on a program which has not yet, except to rudimentary form, been worked out. This will take some doing a lot more than has yet been done. There does not exist as yet even a tentative general estimate of the funds that will be needed during the next two years to avert the impending collapse, not merely of Greece, but of Europe.

It is a good sign that the Republican leaders in the House, which after all controls the purse, have agreed on Congressman Herter's resolution to create a select committee on foreign aid, composed of members of the committee which are especially concerned with it. This committee could do much to make systematic and intelligible the financial underwriting of a foreign policy which is at the present time well meant, but highly disorganized and chaotic.

Rabbits Augment Berlin Food Supply

By The Associated Press

BERLIN—The rabbit has become the most popular domestic animal in calorie-conscious Berlin.

The lowly "kaninchen" serves a double purpose—he provides not only food but fur for coats and hats. And he's easy to feed on such things as potato peelings, vegetable waste and hay.

That's why today thousands of amateur breeders are keeping rabbits on balconies and in cellars, as well as in backyard warrens. In addition, there are 350 commercial rabbit breeders associations.

"A ROSE BY ANY OTHER NAME..."

Who's a Murderer Now?

By JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON, April 12—The case of John L. Lewis versus Julius A. Krug is like an onion; skin off one issue, and you find another issue underlying it. And just as the outer skin of an onion is flimsy and inedible, so is the Krug-Lewis issue which is uppermost at the moment—the Lewis charge that the secretary of the interior is a "murderer." The tragedy of Centralia was not needed to disclose the disgraceful inadequacy of American mine-safety enforcement. But Krug's responsibility for this, such as it may be, is fully shared by none other than John L. Lewis.

The facts on this point are incontrovertible. Lewis's enmity towards Krug, whom he has been threatening to "get" for months, arose from the mine leader's dissatisfaction with the Krug-Lewis agreement of last May. Few negotiations have been more hard-fought, but there was one point on which there was never any argument. Long previously, both the President and Krug had seen the defects of the old system of state responsibility for mine safety. They had accepted the need for a federal mine safety code. The code was attached to the Krug-Lewis agreement as a matter of course.

This was the code's origin.

One point only connected with the code was disputed between Krug and Lewis. Lewis desired responsibility for enforcement to be divided between the mine inspectors of the federal government and mine safety committees set up for each mine by his mine workers. Specifically, Lewis demanded that any mine safety committee have the right to close its mine on a finding of "immediate danger."

Shared Responsibility

When Krug at first resisted this demand, Lewis summoned up all his oratorical powers to get his own way. The mere handful of 180 federal mine inspectors could never, he asserted, maintain an adequate check on safety conditions in over 2,500 coal mines. Only the constant vigilance of the mine workers, he pleaded, could be relied upon to assure enforcement of the safety code. For these reasons he insisted that the enforcement responsibility be equally shared. Krug could not answer Lewis's arguments. The shared responsibility was written into the Krug-Lewis agreement forthwith. Thus at Centralia, general responsibility for safety enforcement lay with Krug's inspectors, and local responsibility was in the hands of Lewis's own mine workers, by Lewis's own insistence.

There are other points that might be mentioned in connection with this much-publicized issue of negligence. Lewis never again raised the problem of mine safety with Krug until the Centralia disaster.

The two federal officials directly charged with mine safety, Dr. R. R. Sayres, of the bureau of mines, and John E. Jones, safety engineer of the coal mines administration, were both recommended for their places by Lewis himself. And only a day or so before Centralia, Lewis praised Sayres's work to the skies before a committee of congress.

Benefits Indicated

These facts are sufficient to indicate that Lewis merely seized upon the Centralia tragedy as a stick to beat Krug, and as a pretext for a work stoppage which he desired in any case. On balance, it is fortunate that he did so. This newest scene in the great serial melodrama of the career of John L. Lewis should at least result in serious efforts to correct undeniably shocking conditions.

That still leaves Issue No. 2 to be faced, however. The American economy is running on a much more narrow margin than most people suppose. The "memorial" work stoppage in the coal mines was like one of those over-ostentatious funerals for which the futures of whole families are mortgaged. The sentiment and the cost were disproportionate.

The sentiment was real and justified. But no one doubts that this work stoppage, which seriously narrowed the margin of national productivity, was also a move in the grand struggle between Lewis and the government. This kind of thing cannot happen very often without forcing an unwilling congress and unhappy country to seek a real solution of the problem of strikes in key industries. There are half a dozen such industries, in which exercise of the constitutional right to strike can bring the whole economy to a rapid dead stop. In coal, this danger is imminent. The mines will be returned to the operators in June. An agreement between the operators and Lewis must first be negotiated. And there is little hope that Lewis will come to terms.

Points To Arbitration

The only alternative to permitting nationally crippling strikes is to establish a system of compulsory wage arbitration for key industries. But any such system must inevitably throw the whole matter of profits into the arbitrators' laps. Thus far, therefore, the administration, the congress, the business community and the unions have all been dead set against anything of the kind, each for different reasons. Under the compulsion of recent experience, however, sentiment for an arbitration system is now growing within the administration. It may well crystallize if the danger of a June coal strike continues as great as it now is.

Nine Years

By TRUMAN TWILL

This whole thing began nine years ago this month—this daily piece about things of no importance by a writer of no importance named Truman Twill. Don't think it hasn't been a lot of fun, because it hasn't.

Writing a daily column for nine years, with vacations and sick leave subtracted, adds up to about 3,000 times. The average length of a column is 12 inches, which figures out at three-fifths of a mile of type one column wide. At this rate, an even mile will have been reached in the fall of 1952.

People ask one question more frequently than any other: How do you get your ideas? We explained this the other day to a little boy who was visiting at the Twillery and had the decency to give the head man that warm glow that comes from being noticed by his offspring's friends.

"Look, Buster," we said, turning our head a trifle on the pillow, "You aren't old enough yet to know it, but a man will do anything for money, or break a leg trying. When anyone takes on the job of writing a daily column, he gets his ideas where he finds them."

The little boy wanted to know where that was.

"I am glad you asked that question," was our suave reply, "because it gives me a chance to acknowledge the deep-felt gratitude of this writer to all the generous persons who have voluntarily and involuntarily assisted him over the dead spots and blank places in his own imagination."

The little boy wanted to know what this had to do with him and his question.

"Nothing," was the snappy rejoiner, "but this is the kind of an act that needs an interlocutor and you're it. Meanwhile, wipe your nose. In some 3,000 columns practically every idea under the sun has been handled at least once, some several times. There is an ebb and flow in human existence—spring, summer, fall, winter and back to spring. Human thoughts and interests rise and fall, come and go. In April we... in June we... in September we..."

"We what?" suggested the little boy.

He was given a penetrating glance. His eyes fell. "Yes, sir, I see, sir," he murmured, not seeing a darned thing, because there wasn't anything there to see in the first place.

But he was a firm little boy. "What do you do when you can't find an idea?" he asked. "I'll bet there are lots of days when that must happen."

"No," was the thoughtful reply. "There never has been a day yet when an idea couldn't be found. But there might be. That's what a fellow begins to dread as the years pass. It's bound to happen sometime, and if it happens—when it happens—there will be a crisis. Because, you see, if it happens once it will happen again, and again, and again. Things will go from bad to worse. Finally, the boss will purse his lips and not at the keepers, who will close in with the net. There will be separation proceedings. Truman Twill will be dragged out of the lap of luxury where he has been nestling. He will have to go to work. It will be horrible, horrible, horrible..."

We looked up to see how the little boy was taking it. He wasn't there. He was out playing basketball in the driveway, which was what he had come for in the first place.

Christ in Our Home

A Sermonette

By REV. E. M. HERTZLER

Pastor of First Church of the Brethren

"...any man love Me, he will keep My words; and My Father ... him, and We will come unto him, and make Our abode with him." John 14:23.

WE HAVE just recently commemorated the resurrection of ... Christ, our Lord. We have ... experienced the assurance ... hope which the risen Christ ... to humanity. Easter into the cold, realistic, ... experiences of another year. So ... think a bit on how we ... have Christ in our homes.

Let us begin by introducing to ... the first Christian home—the ... in which Jesus lived and ... up. It was not a rich home. ... none of our modern conveniences or luxuries. It was not necessarily a cultured home. But ... a sacred home, filled with ... atmosphere. The spirit of ... was in that home. He can help any ... make a new start in life. ... can bring the spirit of forgiveness into our homes. He can ... the children of our homes. ... short Jesus can make our family ... a real Christian experience of living, sharing, and ... together, if we invite Him ... our homes.

We must honestly face the question: Are we willing to receive Christ into our homes? In a number of homes a visitor may still find the old wistful motto on the wall:—"Christ is the head of this home, the unseen guest at every meal, a silent listener to every conversation." Yet in how many of our homes would Christ feel welcome at the family table and at home during the family conversations?

Yet that is where we need Christ most—in our homes. Because it is in our homes that we live our most natural lives. In our homes we discard conventions. There we say what we think, we do what we want to with a greater freedom than we possibly could in the outside world. That is why we often hurt each other in our homes more than we hurt outsiders. If we really felt the presence of Christ in our homes, His presence and His spirit would make a difference in our tone of voice and in our conduct toward one another and our homes would retain a sacredness that is rare in many homes of this day.

Moreover, we need Christ in our homes, because it is within the family circle that most of us face our troubles and worries together. It is in our homes that weary days and long nights of sickness are often spent. It is in the home that most of us walk down the valley of the shadow of death. Into our homes children come and love is born in everyday living, forgiving service. Therefore, if we let Christ enter into the intimate experiences of our family fellowship, we can face all of daily experiences like true Christians, bravely, cheerfully and hopefully. The greatest need of America today is the presence and spirit of Christ in her homes. Because what happens to America in the next century will depend to a great extent on what happens to her homes. No nation can be strong without homes that are spiritually and morally wholesome.

How can we take Christ into our homes? How can we invite His presence and spirit within our family circles?

First, we can accept His own offer: "If any man love Me, he will keep My words: and My Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make Our abode with him." "Behold, I stand at the door and knock, if any one will open, I will come in and sup with him, and he with Me." That is a standing offer of fellowship. If you love Christ keep His words, and practice His teaching, follow His example, open your heart to Him daily in prayer and He in turn will keep His promise. He will come into your life and into your family circle. He will comfort your heart and heal your hurts and bruises. He will never fail you if you believe in Him.

Again, we can have Christ in our homes if we are willing to practice family worship and prayer. If there were more praying homes in our nation, there would be less divorces and broken homes. If the Bible were read in more homes regularly, there would be less nagging and quarreling in many of them. Ten minutes of family worship daily is the best investment of time any home can make.

A third way of keeping Christ in our homes is by keeping our families in the church. No home can be truly Christian unless it has a church-going family. You can scarcely keep a family altar going without also keeping up the family pew. Even a generation ago it was still a heart-warming sight to see whole families attend church services together and fill up the family pew. That is what gave our forefathers a solid spiritual foundation on which to build life. If we want Christ in our homes we must keep our families in the church.

Finally, Christ comes into our homes as we make them fit places for Him to reside. He would be out of place in homes filled with drunkenness, vulgarity, quarreling, and hatred. Christ comes to live in our homes when we learn to practice His spirit of love and tenderness, humility and mercy, forgiveness and patience.

Built-in Features, Space Savers, Offered in Today's House Plan

YOUR HOME TODAY and TOMORROW

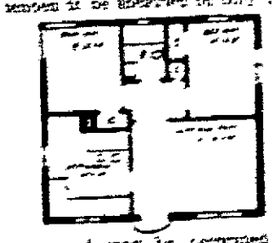
by W. Wentworth Ward

The compact, square, small house shown was designed for occupancy during eight months of the year. It will provide comfortable living at a minimum of construction cost, and should be ideal for a week-end retreat in the mountains or on the seashore.

The house is designed to set on brick or concrete piers and to have only a single thickness of floor instead of the usual rough and finished flooring. The interior is intended to be unfinished so that the wall studs and roof members are exposed. But they may be whitewashed, painted or stained as the owner may desire. The interior partitions are intended to be constructed of thin wall board, plywood or similar material, and may be constructed to suit one's taste and may be constructed to match the walls. A bathroom and kitchen, the heating stove to be the center, so as to offer an even surface behind the furniture. The roof should be covered with standard roofing material, and should be painted with any good wall roofing and having tarred seal. The exterior walls are intended to be of flush siding or lumber and ground, painted horizontally.

The part of the interior is extremely flexible and can be changed in any number of ways to suit varying requirements. The kitchen can be moved right and one of the bedrooms brought forward in the kitchen may be placed diagonally across the house and both bedrooms run along the one side. The entire plan may be turned over, completely changing the layout.

In these days of rationing electric light and high taxation, anyone can remodel a small structure of this kind takes on considerable interest to the average person to make a fun of the whole thing. During the last few years there has been great activity in buying up and remodeling old farm houses and a type of cleaned and altered house, so that not more often than not, the remodeling of the house is of a small and unpretentious nature. When you consider at all you might be ready to attempt some progress on the part of the improvement because the very nature will be job requires caution and figuring. When a good carpenter is let on the job of straight nailing and making and building from the ground up without any unforeseen complications, he can cover a lot of work.



Savings and Loan Assets Set Record

The savings and loan industry in Ohio had total assets amounting to $1,121,301,000 as of Jan. 1, 1945, a new record high in the history of savings and loans, it was announced in a report issued today by the Ohio Savings and Loan League according to Don L. Tobin, executive secretary.

The report also showed that 317 active savings and loan organizations in the state had first mortgage loans amounting to $809,289,000 at the turn of the year. A good portion of these mortgages were made to veterans, who were purchasing their own homes, Mr. Tobin said.

It was also shown that savings and loan associations have $417,472,000 invested in U. S. government bonds, representing a tremendous support of the government during the recent war.

On hand to aid Jan. 1 of this year was $71,751,000 in cash which gives the Ohio savings and loans a strong position to meet the demands for home building that is expected to develop with the coming of spring and good building weather.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WETMAN—

Grease Spot on Linoleum

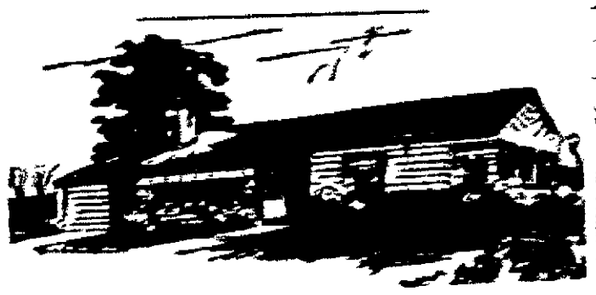
Q. Can you advise how to get grease spots out of inlaid linoleum? The linoleum is a yellow one. It would be right for a bad one of linen with different colors in it, and then the spot removers.

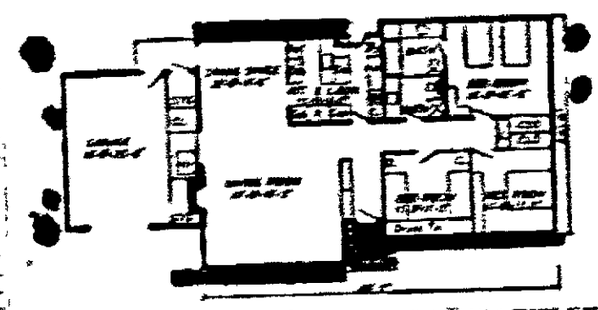
A. Try cleaning the spots by rubbing the surface with fine steel wool and a non-inflammable liquid spot remover. Then polish with a paste wax. Several treatments may be necessary. Avoid using strong caustic cleaners that may well destroy the original appearance of your linoleum.

Swinging Kitchen Door

Q. The lower four-inches of my swinging door between the dining room and kitchen is worn away. It starts a way at the lower edge of the door and is worn against the jamb. Can you advise me to repair?

A. What is the matter of the door and are you for instructions on making the proper repair, or not believe, however that the door needs a repair. I suppose the door at the top has either become worn or it was forced out of place. By raising the door you should be able to take the door out of the frame and examine the condition of the door hinges and jamb. By re-setting the pin or pins correct the condition will be corrected.





This house, designed by the Technical Staff of Practical Builder Chicago, is the answer to any one in quest of an individual home. Small and practical, it still presents a spacious appearance. Its many windows provide for a sunny interior, as well as many possibilities for exterior landscaping, etc.

Built-in furniture, storage walls and all others equipped with sliding doors—provided space saving, are some of the many features. The kitchen-laundry will be a joy to any housewife. Direct passageway to kitchen and bedroom from entry without going through living room, is very convenient and will save many steps. Inside two baths with concentrated plumbing. Wall to between could be glass block or figured glass panels to obscure vision from one section to the other and need not be full height for ventilation purposes.

The living room has an attractive dining area, large enough to accommodate guests without crowding. If the third bedroom is not desired, it could serve as a combination den and guest room.

House itself is approximately 1,450 square feet. Plans are not available, but could be drawn up to any good contractor or architect from this plan.

Those bills will differ in many ways. Because of that, both houses will have to appoint a joint committee to try to agree on a single bill.

That won't be simple. The finished product will wind up being a combination of both bills.

Then it will go to the President to sign into law or to veto.

This all sounds long-drawn out and complicated and it certainly is. There's no one in Washington who can tell the outcome.

Suppose the President vetoes the big labor bill and congress can't pass it over his veto.

Does that mean labor will have come through this jittery and, for labor, nerve-wracking year untouched?

Maybe not. Before it goes home congress may pass some piecemeal bills to curb unions in some way but much less tough than the present house bill.

1,500 School Pupils Hear Vocational Guidance Talks

Students from the ninth, 10th, 11th and 12th grades of the Marion public and parochial schools heard practical talks on types of professions, business and crafts and learned of the steps necessary in preparation for becoming proficient in careers which they hope to enter, at the annual vocational forenoon. Some 1,500 students attended the group conferences, arranged for two periods, at which approximately 60 men and women, representing industry, professions, agriculture, crafts and other fields, were speakers.

Paul Barrett, personnel director of the Ohio Oil company of Findlay, was speaker for the general assembly called for 8:45 a. m. at the Palace theater. Following this the students joined their groups either at Central or Harding buildings for the talks at 9:45 and 10:50.

Luncheon Meeting Held

Following the conference the speakers, faculty members and Mr Barrett met for luncheon at Hotel Harding to discuss the conference. On the mezzanine floor was a display of materials used in the schools and available in the the school libraries arranged by Miss Kathryn Moore, librarian at Harding High school, assisted by Miss Una Ackley of Vernon Heights Junior High school.

At the Palace theater the program opened with the singing of the National Anthem directed by L. G. Jones, supervisor of music in the public schools, with Alan Cleveland at the piano. The pledge of allegiance was led by Mario Nolfi, president of Harding High school council. The invocation was spoken by Rev. R. W. Faulkner, president of the Marion County Ministerial association, and E. E Holt, superintendent of the city schools, presided.

Discounting the theories of phrenologists and hand writing experts as aids to vocational choices in advising youth of today, Mr. Barrett declared "there are no short cuts to success in life, but rather each individual must intune interest with Divine direction, constant effort and recognition of abilities.

More Training Needed

He stated that professional training requires more preparation today than ever before and G. I's who are enrolled in schools of advanced learning are making competition keen because of their desire to finish their education. Mr. Barrett explained that there are three distinct advantages in continuing education whether beyond the secondary or college level: (1) an individual has a better background of world affairs, (2) has a more balanced judgment in understanding the whys and wherefors of life, and (3) possesses a cultural hunger that commands not only his respect for but participation in community affairs, musical circles and literary interests.

He closed his talk with the statement that "you may not get to the top of the heap but you may leaven the heap and make the world a great deal better because of your presence."

Long Period of Planning

Yesterday's conference climaxed weeks of discussion by students and faculty members and represented hours of preparation and thought on the part of the speakers and sponsors. Discussions at the post-conference luncheon centered on day's activities and how future conferences could be improved upon.

The conference this year, as in previous years, was made possible through the interest and work of a sponsoring group, working with Supt. E. E Holt, head of the city schools. Sponsors this year were the Lions club, Kiwanis club, Altrusa club, A F of L, Y's Men's club, Exchange club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Business and Professional Women's club, CIO and Rotary club.

VANDENBERG WORKS ON POLICY SPEECH

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 12—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) was reported today to be preparing an appeal for intensified effort by the Pan-American union to seal Western Hemisphere solidarity.

With the senate on a weekend holiday from its debate over the Greek-Turkey assistance program, Vandenberg drafted a major foreign policy speech for Monday's gathering of representatives of the 21 American republics.

Several other senators were still seething over the latest salvo by Henry A. Wallace against the Greek-Turkey plan—his assertion in London that Britain should refuse to take sides between the United States and Russia.

Senator Lucas (D-Ill) told newsmen "it should be thoroughly understood in this country and throughout the world that he is speaking only for himself."

Senator Eastland (D-Miss) accused the former vice president of trying to "induce the friends and allies of this country to desert her."

Colleagues predicted the Vandenberg speech Monday will be scanned closely by the world's foreign ministers for signs of the trend of bipartisan foreign policy abroad, as well as in the Americas.

But friends said they expected Vandenberg, who heads the senate foreign relations committee, to avoid any controversial subject that might be embarrassing to Secretary of State Marshall at the foreign ministers conference in Moscow.

arms. No free people will be bought—no unfree people will stay bought."

Wallace said the loans to Greece and Turkey—"the first down payments in a plan without shape or end"—were proposed "in the name of the struggle of freedom against totalitarianism."

"On what grounds the name of freedom was invoked, I do not know," he said. "Freedom for an unrepresentative Greek government, led by collaborationist generals, to execute boys of 16 for crying out against the shameful abuses of the reactionary regime?

Trade Unions Suppressed

"Freedom to maintain a Turkish army of close to a million men on Russia's borders, in a nation where free trade unions and many basic freedoms are suppressed?

"For the sake of these objectives America was asked without warning to make one of the most momentous decisions in her history in committing herself, in effect, to rush to the aid of every dictator who hoisted the anti-Communist skull and bones."

Wallace said the idea of Communism, "no matter what pressure is applied against it," would endure so long as workers "live in slums, as long as farmers struggle for a bare existence, as long as all classes live in fear of unemployment and war."

"Only men without faith in democracy live in fear of Communism," Wallace asserted. "Through planning, democracy can provide the economic security that Communism offers, and also the individual freedom that is part of human fulfillment."

UN Speeds Preparation For Palestine Session

By The Associated Press

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., April 12.—Preparations for a special Palestine session of the United Nations general assembly were rushed today and officials were agreed that the meeting probably would open in New York City on April 28.

Final approval of the British request for the session was expected momentarily.

Twenty-four of the necessary 28 endorsements were recorded up to this morning and enough more were known to be enroute to make the session a certainty.

day for workers in the clay refactory division of company plants at Parral and Strasburg, O., and Alexandria, Pa. Additional raises granted the steel workers also would go to the refractory workers by the agreement, the company reported.

But workers still remained from their jobs at the tile and flue departments at the Robinson company's three branches and at Robinson plants at Mogadore, O., and Clearfield, Pa.

Other Ohio strikes involved 2,500 workers, members of the CIO United Electrical Workers, whose walkout closed two National Carbon Co. plants at Cleveland in what was called a "one-day holiday." Neither company nor union employes would discuss the controversy.

The state's clouded industrial picture was lightened by the termination yesterday of a week-long strike of 100 retail clerks at Bellaire. Tentatively accepting a $3 weekly increase, $4 less than they demanded, the clerks, affiliated with the United Mine Workers District 50, returned to their jobs.

Roosevelt Jr. Says He Will Not Run in 1947

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 12—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., said today in an interview published in the New York Post, that he definitely would not run for political office in 1947 but that nobody could "prophesy" what he would be doing three, five or 10 years from now.

Roosevelt, who has been the object of speculation as a possible candidate for political office and who recently conferred with Frank J. Sampson, new leader of Tammany Hall, laughed at mention of a recent magazine article (Life) which said he was "odds-on" favorite for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in New York in 1954.

MARK ROOSEVELT DEATH ANNIVERSARY

By The Associated Press

HYDE PARK, N. Y., April 12—The nation today observes the second anniversary of Franklin D. Roosevelt's death, with ceremonies planned at the old Hudson river valley mansion which he had hoped to enjoy in retirement.

On the flagstoned portico, a favorite lounging place of the late president, a memorial program will be broadcast to the nation over three networks (NBC, ABC, MBS) from 4:30 to 4:45 p. m.

President Truman, who succeeded to the cares of Mr. Roosevelt's office two years ago today, will speak from Kansas City in tribute to his predecessor.

From the portico, only a stone's throw from the rose garden where the president was buried, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau will broadcast.

Two hundred special guests have been invited. But the National Park service, which completes today its first year as administrator of the historic site, expects several thousand other visitors will hear the program from the lawn before the house.

Morgenthau, president of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial foundation, is expected to announce a series of undertakings which the foundation will sponsor in memory of the wartime president.

A member of the foundation's executive committee, playwright Robert E. Sherwood, will speak after the broadcast.

From the estate's opening to the public a year ago until the end of last month, 462,603 visitors have toured the house and the nearby memorial library and paused in tribute at the grave.

Former Candidate's Wife Gets Divorce

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 12—Nellie Lee Payne, 42, was granted an uncontested divorce today from Albert Edward Payne, Springfield manufacturer, following a hearing before common pleas Judge Golden C. Davis.

Payne, 43, was an unsuccessful candidate for the gubernatorial nomination on the Republican ticket in 1946.

The decree was granted on grounds of extreme cruelty. Payne withdrew charges of gross neglect and extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Payne was granted the Red Brick tavern at LaFayette, which she had estimated is worth $50,000, a cash award of $5,000 and residential property in Springfield.

Payne was given custody of two minor children, 16 and 14. He also received sole title to other property Mrs. Payne had estimated worth $400,000, including 412.69 acres of farm land worth $100,000, Springfield real estate worth $50,000, livestock valued at $50,000, the Payne Tool and Engineering Co. business and property worth $200,000.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR MINE LAID TO FIRM

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 11—State fact-finders say the "primary responsibility" for the miners' safety in the Centralia coal mine where 111 perished March 25 "rested upon the company officials, superintendent and manager."

The special seven-member group appointed by Gov. Dwight H. Green also reported yesterday that officials of the state mines and minerals department and state mining board members "followed a weak, ineffectual and indifferent policy toward enforcement of the state mining laws for at least 18 months" before the explosion.

The committee said Driscoll O. Scanlan, state mine inspector with jurisdiction over the blast-shattered mine, had "the legal authority to close this mine if he considered it unsafe."

It said Scanlan's "expressed fear that if he did so he would be discharged or reprimanded by the state director of mines and minerals (Robert M. Medill, who resigned April 1) is not a sufficient excuse for his (Scanlan's) failure to close the mine."

The 10,000-word report by the committee headed by John E. Cassidy, former Democratic attorney general of Illinois, also said:

"It is apparent the company officers and management did not exercise the proper degree of diligence toward complying with the recommendations of federal and state inspectors for many months prior to the explosion." The mine was operated by the Centralia Coal Company.

The company officials made no immediate comment on the report, nor was there any from Scanlan.

Truman Names May 11 As "Mother's Day"

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 12 — President Truman today designated Sunday, May 11, as Mother's day.

Mr. Truman called on government officials and the people generally to display the flag that day to show the "reverent esteem in which we hold the mothers of our country."

question arose as to the price of the coal and said that was a matter for the economists. The correspondent shouted that Britain had received "not one penny in profit."

May Hurt Popularity

French officials predicted Molotov's delay on the Saar issue would hurt Communist popularity in France and tighten cooperation among the three western powers in Germany.

This prediction came as the conference resumed discussion of current German political problems and procedures for writing a peace treaty with Germany.

Molotov last night withstood four separate efforts of French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault to get Russia to agree immediately to economic integration of the coal-bearing Saar valley with France. Both Marshall and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin have endorsed the proposal, under which a commission would be set up at once to make detailed plans for the merger.

The feeling among western diplomats seemed to be that the Soviet Union was on the spot in the Saar issue.

Truman Flies To Mother's Home

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

GRANDVIEW, Mo., April 12—President Truman, coming home for a weekend visit with his mother, arrived at Grandview airport at 12:10 in his personal plane, the Sacred Cow.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 12—President Truman took off at 8:10 a. m. today in his personal plane, the Sacred Cow, for a flying trip to Missouri to spend the weekend with his 94-year-old mother.

The President arrived at the airport 15 minutes early and in a chat with reporters said he is feeling fine as he starts his third year in the presidency.

He remarked that crises are just about as numerous today as they were when he succeeded the late President Roosevelt upon the latter's death two years ago today.

Accompanying the President in his own plane, were Secretaries Charles G. Ross and Matthew Connelly, a personal secretary, Miss Rose Conway, and Major General Harry H. Vaughn, military aide.

This is the President's third flight to his mother's home at Grandview, Mo. She is bedridden there with a hip fracture, suffered Feb. 13.

RITES PLANNED FOR TORNADO VICTIMS

By The Associated Press

WOODWARD, Okla., April 12—Relatives today were completing arrangements for the burial of the 84 victims of Woodward's Wednesday night tornado which left 1,000 injured and caused property damage estimated in the millions.

The northwestern Oklahoma city was hardest hit of the Texas and Oklahoma communities in the path of the storm. More than 50 other persons were killed or died of injuries. Additional hundreds of injured taxed hospital facilities.

Higgins, Tex., told of 39 dead; Glazier, Tex., 14. There were three dead in Gage, Okla. Total casualties in the twister which first struck in the panhandle of northern Texas and swept northeastward into Oklahoma were 140 dead and an estimated 1,305 injured. Work crews searched for other victims.

Donations of money, clothing and food poured into Higgins and Glazier. A fund to rebuild the shattered towns reached $40,000 in Amarillo.

Plans for mass funeral services in Woodward have been abandoned. Instead, four of the leading churches have arranged separate rites, the first to be held today for 15 victims.

Rev. D. Allen Polen, Methodist pastor, said his church would begin funeral services tomorrow morning, continuing them on an hourly schedule throughout the day.

Fans To Get First Look at Local Cubs in Intra-Squad Game Tomorrow

Contest Set for 1 P. M., Barring Complications from Weather

By GEORGE ROEST

Provided the elements cooperate, the Cubs will get their first taste of action tomorrow afternoon.

Manager Nelson Burbrink said today if the weather does not interfere an intra-squad game will be staged at tomorrow afternoon's practice session. Drills have been scheduled from 1 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Rain yesterday forced the cancellation of practice. Cub moundsmen were expected to get their first opportunity to throw for batting practice. Today's plans are the same as yesterday's.

Three Practices Held

Three practices had been held up to yesterday and Manager Burbrink says they have suited him so far.

Neither Burbrink nor Dick Spalding, Cub scout who is assisting Burbrink in spring training, thought yesterday's forced rest would hurt the team. They explained the pre-season workouts were expected to be curtailed somewhat by days such as yesterday. If the rain should continue for several days at a time, however, it would keep the outfit from rounding into form as soon as they should.

Schedule Set Ahead

Burbrink said the main thing will be to keep ahead of the weather. He foresaw rains would keep the squad off the field several days this spring and for this reason asked the Marion club officials to set the opening of spring practice up one week, which they did. Originally spring practices had been set to open April 14.

No cases of sore arms or sprains have been suffered by the players. Burbrink and Spalding have been warning them to wait until they are fully limbered up before cutting loose.

Bob Diedrick Back For Another Fling With Marion Club

Bob Diedrick, popular first baseman with the Marion Cardinals last year, has reported to the local ball club again this season.

Diedrick also played with Marion part of the 1945 season and he has a contract with the local ball club.

A smooth fielding baseman last season, he was not too potent at the plate. A natural left hander, he tried swinging right handed for better results but this season is again batting from the first base side of the plate.

If he is able to develop punch at the plate, many observers believe that he will go a long way in organized ball.

Bob is a roller coaster enthusiast. He says when Marion played at Newark and Zanesville last season the players would go to the nearby Buckeye Lake amusement park and that he had his most fun on the up and down hill speed ride.

He is from Cleveland, is six feet tall and weighs 160 pounds.

TO PRACTICE MONDAY

The Junior Chamber of Commerce softball team will hold initial practice drills at Garfield park Monday at 5:30 p. m. All members interested in trying for the team are asked to report.

By The Associated Press

INGLEWODD, Calif., April 12—The Grand Circuit harness meeting, off to a financially successful start, went into its second day at Hollywood park today with two $5,000 races headlining the program of pacing and trotting.

With the favored Algiers winning the $2,500 Premier trot, and Grattan McKlyo, a surprise winner in the $5,000 Saludos Amigos pace, in yesterday's inaugural bill, attention centered today on the Westward Ho trot and the preview stake for an outstanding but small field of pacers.

Slated to race in today's feature race were R. W. Leatherdale's Blue Again, winner of the $50,000 pace at Santa Anita in 1946; Jimmy Creed, owned by Silas B. Thompson of New Ross, Ind; Charming Scot, from the Earl Menzenberger stable of Garrett, Ind., and Eddie Havens and R. L. Craig's April Star of Urbana, O.

The Westward Ho drew entries of Scotch Colleen, Onelee Hanover, Scotch Goddess, Delnora, Baron Richard, Beatrice Hanover, Brittanic Fez Hanover, Errol Hanover, Frances Dawn, Lingo Direct, Proximity, Spengay, Sky Raider and Juno Chimes.

Both races are at one mile.

Bucyrus Church League Seeks One More Entry

BUCYRUS, April 12—Still one team short for a six-team loop, the Bucyrus Church softball league has appelaed for one more team to complete the loop.

Representatives of the five teams were on hand for the organization meeting at the Y.M.C.A. Thursday night. Teams entered are Holy Trinity, Reformed, Church of Christ, Good Hope and St. Paul's. Deadline for entrants is Monday.

Meanwhile entries in the City loop were boosted to seven and an eighth team is needed to round out the schedule Siferd-Hosselman entered a team Friday.

Both the City league and Church league managers will meet in a joint session at the Y.M.C.A. April 21.

Zale-Graziano Fight Takes Shape for June

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 12—Sam Plan, manager of Tony Zale, said today that "the way things look now, Zale probably will defend his middleweight championship in a rematch with Rocky Graziano sometime this June in Chicago."

Plan said he was planning to meet Irving Cohen, Graziano's manager, in Cleveland Tuesday and that they would go to New York "to try to reach a definite decision" on the encore.

If Money Can Buy Pennant, Pittsburgh Will Have Flag

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Add the Pittsburgh Pirates to the scramble for first division berths in the National league. If a pennant can be bought Frank E. McKinney, new president of the Buccaneers, is the man who is in a position to do the buying.

McKinney is president of the Fidelity Trust Company in Indianapolis, owns "about 70 per cent" of stock in the Indianapolis club of the American Association and has an interest in five radio stations in the Indiana city.

It was 85 degrees in the shaded box at dusty Flamingo Park and the Washington Senators had just scored eight runs in the third inning and nine the next against the Pirates, but McKinney proved a willing talker.

Southworth Made Good Deal

It has been said around the Gold Coast that Manager Billy Southworth of the Boston Braves pulled "a good deal for Boston" when he insisted the Pirates give up Bob Elliott and Hank Camelli to get Billy Herman as a player-manager.

"I've always admired Herman as a player," says McKinney. "The price for him was pretty high, but I let it be known that I wanted him badly."

PITTSBURGH PIRATES

Pitching—Stronger.
Catching—Weak.
Infield—Questionable.
Outfield—Hard hitting.
Hitting—Fair.
Finish—Fifth.

McKinney, 43, is in this baseball business for keeps. He has looked for an opportunity to buy a major league team ever since 1938 when he bought an interest in the Louisville Colonels of the American association.

"I sold Louisville in 1940 to the Boston Red Sox," says the good looking, round-faced banker. "But before I did I sold Pee Wee Reese to Larry MacPhail and the Brooklyn Dodgers for $65,000 and two ballplayers.

Picked Off Sandlots

"We picked Reese off the Louisville sandlots and while we had a working agreement with the Red Sox, Boston was set at short with Joe Cronin."

In 1941 McKinney bought the Indianapolis team. It is one of the six minor league teams owned by the Pirates, who have working agreements with eight other clubs in lower classifications.

McKinney says the Pirates have "some good pitching prospects there and it's only a matter of time as to when they'll make the big jump."

The Pirate prexy generally is regarded as the man who did the most to keep Hank Greenberg in baseball after Detroit waived him out of the American League. Though Pirate treasurer John W. Galbreath, Columbus, O., horseman, eventually brought about Greenberg's signing, McKinney says his original offer to Hank never was altered.

"Greenberg had other interests in mind but didn't know whether he wanted to enter into them just yet," says McKinney. "I had to turn the discussion over to Galbreath because I was called back to Indianapolis."

"Did the boys hit it right in saying Greenberg is getting $80,000 for his one-year contract? And were there any side deals like club stock, yachts or automobiles involved in Hank's signing?"

"I'd rather not comment on the salary," says the Pirate owner. "But a straight player contract is what Hank signed. No yachts are involved."

McKinney almost bought into the Boston Braves at the start of the war while he was serving in the Army's Finance Division in Washington and New York.

"Bing Crosby (now vice president of the Pirates) wanted me to go in with him on a Boston deal four or five years ago," says McKinney. "He wanted me to make a bid for him. But I was in the service. Then this thing (Pittsburgh sale) came up and that's how Bing became a baseball stockholder.

Uncertain About Finish

"I don't know how we'll finish this year. I only saw 11 or 12 Pittsburgh games last year. But I do know Greenberg is satisfied and I think he'll play great ball for us.

"It's hard to say how Greenberg's purchase helped our ticket sales. I think we were in the midst of the advance ticket sale on season box seats when the deal was announced."

When Greenberg was sold to the Pirates for $20,000 the Pirates had a $170,000 advance box seat sale. Just before the close of spring training in this city of night life and neon signs, the ticket sale reached $300,000.

"We hope to be sold out on season box seats when the season opens," says Pirate General Manager Roy Hamey, president of the American association last year and before that general manager for the Yankees' Kansas City farm team in the same loop.

Harding Set for Ball Game Against Pleasant

Having been given a few tips on the game by Bob Quinn, a veteran of over 53 years in baseball which included duty with Columbus, the St. Louis Cardinals and Browns, and 20 years with the Boston Braves, Harding's diamond nine believes it will be ready to go Monday afternoon.

The Prexies will open against Pleasant here in Marion, the game to start at 4 p. m.

Quinn spoke at the professional sports division of the vocational conference held yesterday. Most of the members of the team were present and Coach W. N. Wiley says he thinks they picked up some valuable pointers which may aid them in their showing.

The team was able to work out four days this week and practices reveal they should be fairly powerful at the plate. No member of the pitching staff is ready to go the route, Wiley believes, so he will divide mound chores among Jack Owens, Jim Aleny, Ed Roseberry, and possibly a couple of others. Jim Coss, another pitcher, has developed a sore arm.

The line up he plans to use now will place Doug Kneisley behind the plate, Don Zeisler at first, Jim Riley at second, Bill Mathias at shortstop, and Jim Hill at third base. The outfielders will be Bob Ralston, right; Dick Huddle, center; and Dick Riddle, left.

Likely substitutions are Dick Thomas at second, Dick Roseberry at short, and John Courtright at first base. Don Zeisler may trade off at catcher. Dick Brown, who was expected to see service behind the plate, has suffered an ankle injury so will not be ready to go. His ankle was first injured in football last fall.

Reports from Pleasant are that the team will be handicapped by lack of practice but they bid to be tough, having won the first half of the county league last fall downing Waldo, Morral, Kirkpatrick, and Green Camp.

The team relies heavily on the services of Don Dutt, a curve ball pitcher. Last fall the team posted one 16 to 6 victory.

W. C. Bernow who is handling the team hasn't announced the starting line up. Team members from last fall are Granville Martin, Ron and Milan Gorby, Dick Green, Charles Mayers, Bob Verity, Bill Vance, Don Hall, and Jack Merchant.

SCORES 55 POINTS

KENTON, April 12—Something of a scoring record was set Friday night at the Ridgeway Gold Medal basketball tourney when Neil Schmidt, former Bluffton High school star, playing with the Lima Moose, scored 55 points to lead his team in a 136 to 67 win over Rising Sun's No. 2 team.

CUB SCOUT HAS HIGH PRAISE FOR DILLION

Spalding Great Admirer of Localite as Catcher.

Dick Spalding, Chicago Cub Scout assisting Nelson Burbrink in spring practice, has much praise for a Marion ball player—but the player isn't a candidate for the Marion Cubs.

He is Bob Dillion, who will be playing with Schlairet this year. Dillion played as a catcher with Quebec in the Canadian-American league last season, but was forced to quit before the season was completed because of illness.

Quebec is a Chicago Cub farm team and Spalding worked with that outfit for a time last year. He says that Dillion is one of the most promising catchers he has seen recently and was surprised to find that he is from Marion.

The Cubs sent Dillion a contract with Hutchinson, Kansas this season and Spalding had informed the manager of that club that his catching problems were over.

Because of his health Dillion has decided against going back into professional ball this year and so Kenny Somerlot, Schlairet manager, is the manager who is all smiles.

Hutchinson is the club with which the local outfit has a working agreement.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 12—One reason why Hank Greenberg was so reluctant to sign with Pittsburgh was "Oh, my achin' back." . . . Just before starting north, Hank revealed that a back ailment had bothered him for years and he was about ready to give up when Dock Jorgensen, the Pirate trainer, took charge. . . . Hank offered: "Bet you can't make it pop in four weeks." . . . Said Doc. "Bet I can." Jorgensen traced the trouble to Greenberg's fifth lumbar vertebra, instead of the sacro-iliac that the medicos had been trying to fix, and in a few weeks it "popped" and Hank felt a lot better. . . . So if you should see the Pirate slugger kiss the trainer at home plate on opening day, you'll know the answer. That was the bet.

Today's Guest Star

Bob Stedler, Buffalo Evening News: "Former lightweight champion Lou Ambers quit the tavern business. In other words, he isn't dispensing amber fluid any more."

Sports Mention

Ted Williams, assuring southern scribes that he intends to sock one to left occasionally to counteract the "Williams shift," wonders why teams don't try the same move against Hank Greenberg. "He hits to left field as often as I hit to right and he's strictly a pull hitter," says Ted. . . . Bert Lytell, the southern middleweight cutie, says he's ready to fight Jake Lamotta "any time Jake runs out of welterweights."

Headline Headliner

Gromek and Embree, Cleveland Question Marks, On Hill Today

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 12—Two Cleveland Indians "Question Marks" who could turn into "exclamation points" for the 1947 Redskins—Charley (Red) Embree and Steve Gromek—hurl today in the Tribe's next-to-last exhibition game against the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds.

Embree, lean right-hander who copped but eight triumphs for the Tribe last year, was considered one of the Indians' brightest hurling prospects before his entry into the army two years ago. However, Manager Lou Boudreau has become convinced of Embree's comeback ability to the point that the red-head will draw the No. 3 assignment against Detroit next week.

Winner of 19 games in 1945, Gromek slumped badly last season and wound up with a grand total of five victories. Several notches away from a 1947 starting berth, the side-armed fastballer was expected to bear down against the Giants today.

The Polo Grounders clinched the championship of the annual Cleveland-New York grapefruit league series yesterday at Richmond, Va., by winning a six-homer parade, 6 to 2. The victory gave the giants a 9-7 edge in the 15-game series.

Manager Boudreau said he also would start his entire opening day lineup, with the exception of pitcher Bob Feller, in today's contest.

Robinson Handles Himself Well In Big Loop Debut

By The Associated Press

BROOKLYN, April 12—Jackie Robinson's debut in a major league uniform wasn't as auspicious as his initial appearance in organized baseball last year but the Negro infielder of the Brooklyn Dodgers handled himself as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

Playing first base yesterday, the Dodger speed merchant failed to hit safely in four official trips to the plate but drove in three runs on two fly balls and a fielder's choice as the Dodgers swamped the New York Yankees, 14-6 at Ebbetts field.

In two of his trips to the plate, the former U.C.L.A. all-around athlete who enjoyed a field day at the plate when his Montreal team trounced Jersey City in their 1946 International league opener, flied out deep to left and lined to center.

His play in the field was flawless as he handled 15 chances during the nine-inning game with ease.

Clyde Sukeforth, manager protem of the Dodgers, said before the game that he plans to give Robinson a thorough trial at first base. "If he fails to make it, he will be used in a utility role at either second, short or third. I am satisfied he can play any infield position."

SEVERAL LOCAL 9'S TO TRAIN TOMORROW

Several Marion baseball and softball teams will hold practices tomorrow.

HAWKINSON
Tread Your Tires

Many users of HAWKINSON TREADS tell us that our treads actually improve their tires—that they experience INCREASED mileage on them. There are several very good reasons for this, two of these reasons being that (a) no heat is applied to the cords and inner rubber during the process of application, and that (b) the tread is applied under natural running conditions that are not used even in making a new tire, causing HAWKINSON TREADS to run cooler.
No HAWKINSON TREAD will be applied until the tire has been given the most rigid inspection and the carcass found to be in first class condition.

STOCKS WILT UNDER HEAVY LIQUIDATIONS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 12—Stocks wilted today under relatively heavy liquidation with many market leaders touching lows for the year or longer on losses of fractions to 2 or more points.

Dealings were quiet and prices only a shade mixed at the start. There was a burst of offerings in virtually all departments midway in the first hour. The pace soon slowed and extreme declines were reduced in the majority of cases near the close. Steels, motors and rails were in the forefront of the slide. Transfers of around 600,000 shares were the largest for a short session since March 8.

On the downswing were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, North American, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, Dow Chemical, Du Pont, Schenley, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak and U. S. Gypsum.

The recent action of the market itself was blamed partly for the flurry of short sales and lightening of accounts by professionals as well as commission house customers.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

KATHARINE'S warning was like a spur to my faltering nerves, frayed with anxiety over the mystery investing Mary's illness and terrible despondency.

I must leave nothing undone, I told myself, and I must cope with each separate detail of our planned care for Mary without the delay of an instant. And my first "coping," I knew, would be with that familiar, fascinating, and baffling enigma, long known to me, Philip Veritzen.

I came back into our family sitting room with my shoulders squared and my head lifted alertly. I caught my husband's eyes, and in them read sympathy, encouragement, and an amused recognition of my sudden militant attitude.

Then the knocker sounded, and with a feeling of relief I saw my father rise, waving Dicky back, and go to the door. I remembered that he had asked to see the Lansfield owner first, and knew that I could put off my "coping" for a minute or two at least.

"Welcome, Phil," I heard my father say as he opened the door, and then the rich tones of Philip Veritzen's voice returned the greeting.

"I am so glad to see you, Charles," he said. "This is a most delightful surprise. And I am filled with curiosity. How can I help you?"

Had Not Been Fooled

So used am I to his every intonation because of the long years spent in his office that I knew he had not been fooled for an instant by my father's summons. He knew that we wanted him for something connected with Mary, and his own curiosity, combined with a secret willingness to mitigate his severity toward Mary, was responsible for his acceptance of my father's invitation.

But we all must move warily, I knew, lest we offend his colossal ego by betraying that we had guessed his prescience. He was planning, I surmised, to go along with the pretense, find out what we really wanted, and then confound us with his knowledge.

But he—and I—had reckoned without my father. When he answered the visitor's question, I tensed with anticipation. This was going to be good, I told myself, in one of my husband's favorite phrases.

"Come in and sit down, Philip," my father said. "I have to make you an apology, and give you an explanation, and we can do it better over a cigar. Will you try one of mine?"

Philip Veritzen is too poised a man to betray astonishment, but I knew from the quick look he shot at my father as he sat down and accepted the cigar, that he was puzzled and a bit uneasy. But he said nothing except a conventional "Thank you," for the cigar, and my father did not speak again until both cigars were lighted and drawing well.

"I brought you down here under false pretenses, Philip," my father began. "No!" He put out a mandatory hand, and the famous impresario sank back in his chair as one of my father's assistants might have done.

"Please hear me out," my father went on, "for we have little time, and are in desperate straits.

"I told you the truth when I said I wished to see you concerning this intelligence problem," he said. "But I did not intend to call you down here. I meant to come up to you rapartment and see you and Olga together, for I think she can give me some light on one angle of it."

Did Not Speak Aloud

Philip Veritzen's lips opened and formed the word "Olga?" But he did not say the name aloud, and my father went quickly on.

"But when I came in here, I found my daughter and her husband—and Dr. Twitchell—in desperate need of you. But they did not wish to tell you their problem over the telephone, nor to ask you to come down without giving yu a plausible reason."

Not by even the traditional quiver of an eyelash did he intimate that he knew Philip already had refused to see Dr. Twitchell before morning. But from beneath my eyelashes, I saw Philip's eyes flash quickly to my face, and then away again, and I guessed that his conscience, or what Dicky would call "a reasonable imitation thereof," was stirring beneath his imperturbable exterior.

"What is this desperate need of me?" he asked, and I drew a relieved breath, for there was no tinge of mockery in the question.
